GLOBAL ADVOCACY

Advanced-level study of international systems, policies and perspectives helps prepare students to advocate for improved health and welfare in communities worldwide. Learning with students from multiple disciplines fosters interdisciplinary problem-solving of global issues.

GLOBAL HEALTH AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS AT UCF

UCF’s new Graduate Certificate in Global Health and Public Affairs consists of 12 credit hours of study. Students take two required courses, including a research seminar. They also take two elective courses, one of which may be a study abroad course offered by the College of Health and Public Affairs, College of Nursing or College of Medicine. Students are required to select a concentration in either Global Health or Global Public Affairs.

Global Health Concentration

Students select two courses from a group of six elective courses on topics such as diverse populations, international health systems, lifestyle medicine and violence against women.

Global Public Affairs Concentration

Students select two courses from a group of six elective courses covering subject areas such as international law, justice, human rights, and public policy and governance.

For complete program requirements, see the UCF Graduate Catalog at graduatecatalog.ucf.edu.

FOR MORE INFORMATION:

Ranetta Guinn
Director of COHPA Graduate Services
407.823.3179
rguinn@ucf.edu

University of Central Florida
College of Health and Public Affairs
12805 Pegasus Drive
Orlando, Florida 32816-2200

Asian Culture, Health Care and Aging Society
Taipei, Taoyuan and Taichung, Taiwan
May 30 to June 9, 2018 (Summer A) • 3 credits
Application deadline: Feb. 1, 2018
Contact: Su-I Hou, Ph.D., su-i.hou@ucf.edu
This program examines demographic trends of the aging population, health issues among older adults, aging services, strategies for health promotion and disease prevention, and challenges to the health care system in Taiwan. Students also explore Asian culture, values and lifestyles.

Social Work Perspectives on Sexuality Abroad
Amsterdam, Netherlands
June 2 to 9 (tentative), 2018 (Summer A) • 3 credits
Application deadline: Feb. 1, 2018
Contact: Tameca Harris-Jackson, Ph.D., tameca.harris-jackson@ucf.edu
Students study the perceptions, definitions and experiences of human sexuality in the content of society. They learn how human sexuality is expressed and experienced through social norms, attitudes, beliefs and policies in both the United States and the Netherlands.

Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology: An International Clinical Experience
San José, Costa Rica
March 10 to 18, 2018 (Spring Break) • 1-3 credits
Application deadline: Feb. 1, 2018
Contact: Linda I. Rosa-Lugo, Ed.D., lrosalugo@ucf.edu
This program is based at the Universidad Santa Paula in Costa Rica. Students will be provided with the opportunity to engage in international clinical experiences in speech-language pathology and audiology.